Muckleshoot Casino hires new GM

Peter Valentine, after a second stint as the Muckleshoot Casino's General Manager – this time on an interim basis – has resumed his retirement and is back on the golf course. Conrad Granito Jr. is the new GM, and here are some words he has to share with the community.

Hello! My name is Conrad Granito. I'm the current General Manager here at the Muckleshoot Casino. I've been involved in gaming now for 25 years, all in Indian country. I started in 1990 with the Sycuan Band of Mission Indians in Southern California, starting in the bingo operation and then working my way up to gaming operations.

In 1993, I went the Pueblo of Isleta, (near Albuquerque) and was their General Manager. It was basically a bingo operation when I started, and during my time there I helped negotiate their first, second and third compacts with the State of New Mexico, later coming back for the fifth and sixth compacts. I was there for about four years, and took it literally from a bingo operation to a full-blown casino, which was very beneficial to the tribe.

After that, I was President and Chief Operating Officer of a company called GameTech, which dealt in electronic bingo units, mostly in Native American country and with charities. We leased electronic bingo monitor units similar to what's at the bingo hall here at Muckleshoot. I was there for a year and a half. Basically, I'm an operator, though, not a supplier, so I made a choice to return to the gaming end of the business.

Next, I worked for the Southern Ute Tribe in

MIT'S LAW ENFORCEMENT MOVING TO TRIBAL COURT

MUCKLESHOOT – Effective July 1, 2014, The Muckleshoot Tribal Police will begin citing Tribal members who commit certain misdemeanors and traffic infractions into the Muckleshoot Tribal Court rather than State Court. This marks an important change in how the Tribe exercises its sovereign authority.

In the past, the Tribe has left law enforcement to the State Courts. With this change, much of that effort will return to the Tribe. The goal is to better meet Community needs by enhancing the safety of the Reservation and providing additional services to those who violate Tribal law. The result will be a Reservation which is a safer and a more comfortable and inviting place to live and work.

The Tribal Court has expanded its scope to be able to take on this added duty. The Court has employed a full-time Clerk and Probation Officer, who join the Court Administrator and the Tribe's current part-time Probation Officer.

The Tribal Police has also expanded by adding a new officer from Auburn to provide enhanced police services on those areas of the Reservation located in Auburn. Finally, the Tribe intends to enter into a contract with South Correctional Entity (SCORE) for jail services. Together, these services should help increase the enforcement response on the Reservation and community well-being.

The Tribe has taken these steps with a bit of caution to be sure the implementation goes smoothly. Not all offenses will go to Tribal Court. Felonies will continue to be referred to State Court as will Domestic Violence and DUI cases; however, the majority of common violations that can disrupt Reservation life will find their way to Tribal Court. As this new authority is exercised, it will continually be evaluated and modified to provide even better services to Tribal members.

The Tribal Council has directed these changes after becoming convinced that Tribal members charged in the State Court system were not treated fairly. Moreover, and perhaps more importantly, those members did not receive services needed to help them turn their lives around. The result was that the Reservation was not safer.

It is Council's hope that moving enforcement of

Puyallup mourns passing of Tribal Chairman Herman Dillon Sr.

By Matt Nagle, Puyallup Tribal News

With heavy hearts the Puyallup Tribe of Indians announced the death of longtime Tribal Council Chairman Herman Dillon Sr. on Friday, May 23. After a lengthy illness, the 82-year-old Dillon passed away peacefully with his wife Darlene Dillon by his side.

"Our whole family is grieving the loss of the head of our family," said Dillon's daughter Sheila Beckett. "We appreciate everyone's condolences during this rough time. He was so important to all of us. He will be greatly missed."

Puyallup Tribal Vice Chairman Bill Sterud worked side-by-side with Dillon for over three decades. "It's a sad day on earth and a happy day in heaven," Sterud said of his trusted friend. "Herman was a hard worker on the council for more than 35 years. He has been part of the movement of the tribe into where it is today. He was a veteran, a great family man, a dad, an uncle, a grandpa as well as a great tribal leader."

Sterud also noted Dillon's easy laugh and smile. "He was the king of the one-liners. He had an incredible sense of humor."

Local, state and federal lawmakers have sent condolences to the Tribe and Dillon's family:

"We are deeply saddened to hear the news of Chairman Dillon's passing," Tacoma Mayor Marilyn Strickland said. "He will be remembered for his dedication, warmth and leadership. As a member of the Tribal Council for over 20 years, he was a constant and reliable leader for the Tribe and the region. And in all those years, he always extended his full welcome to the City of Tacoma. Our thoughts and prayers are with Chairman Dillon's family, the members of the Puyallup Tribe of Indians, and the countless others whose lives he touched."

"Herman Dillon dedicated his life to the Puyallup Tribe and tribes all across our state, and generations of Washingtonians will benefit from his life's work," said U.S. Senator Patty Murray. "As a veteran and a champion for education, treaty rights, and our proud fishing heritage, Herman leaves a legacy in our state that cannot be replaced. We will miss his spirit, his passion, and his advocacy. My thoughts and prayers are with his family, members of the Puyallup Tribe of Indians, and all inspired by his work."

A personable and friendly man, Dillon was loved dearly by the tribal membership that first elected him to the Puyallup Tribal Council in 1971. Dillon served during critical historic moments in the Puyallup Tribe's development into an influential and financially successful urban Indian tribe.

Outside of the tribe, Dillon was highly respected by the many friends and political allies he worked with over the years. Whether meeting with city or state officials or testifying on Indian affairs in Washington, D.C., Dillon lived his life for his people. It was this passion and pride in being Native American, along with his kind demeanor, that drew so many to him from all walks of life.

"Herman Dillon Sr. was our chairman for all of the years I have served on the tribal council," said Tribal Council Member Marguerite Edwards. "He has become a legend with his wry humor, quick wit and ability to manage the actions of a tribal council. With each council member having different opinions and positions on topics, it was with the same wry and witty humor that he kept things moving in an effortless fashion.

"He had, over the years, become the epitome of the word 'chairman,' and an extremely natural and gifted Master of Ceremony. He was a kind and loving man. He raised many children, born to him and taken in by him. I will really miss Herman. In my mind I can see his cowboy boots and Pendleton coat on him as he sits in his chairman's seat at the council table, and I know I will never forget him. I pray for his good journey home."

these offenses to Tribal Court will allow the Tribal Court to apply tribal custom and law when imposing consequence on a Tribal member offender. The result will be more focused treatment of Tribal member offenders, and a reduction in the members who offend over and over again, which leads to a safer Reservation. Copies of the new Tribal Criminal Code are available for review at the Court Administrator's Office.

Southwest Colorado. They need gaming like you and I need another shirt. They are a very, very blessed tribe, in that they have natural resources of oil and gas. For most tribes, gaming is for huge economic development and support programs, but for them it was just another business they had, and really amounted to dollars and cents. It was nowhere near the economics of the oil and gas that they had. I was there for four years and turned their operation around.

I left there and then went to New Mexico and worked for the Pueblo of Santa Ana. Their operation was in need and presented many challenges due to past management that made some mistakes. This turnaround went very well, with their revenues tripling in less than two years and being sustained during the time I was there.

And then I had the opportunity to work with my most recent employer, the Coshatta Tribe of Louisiana. I was there for five and a half years and it was a similar type of thing – a very competitive marketplace – and I helped with their repositioning within that market, renovation of the property, and the addition of 401 hotel rooms.

During the past 24 years, I've also consulted with well over 55 tribes. It started with Sycuan. Due to their success, their Tribal Chairman, Danny Tucker, was contacted by Morongo in Southern California and asked to come and assist them. Because of Sycuan's success, and my involvement in cash operations and gaming operations, I was tapped by Sycuan to be one of their consultants with the Sycuan Center of Gaming Management.

For the last two years I was there, besides my regular job, I was traveling to Oklahoma, Washington, Oregon, Wisconsin, Minnesota, California, and Arizona. I worked with the Lummi Tribe in setting up their operation way back when, and that's when I came here and saw the old Muckleshoot Bingo Hall, when it was here on this property.

When I left the Sycuan Center for Gaming Management, I continued consulting with other tribes who knew my reputation, except for those that were in Sycuan's competitive area. It was almost eight years ago, when I was working with Santa Ana, that Spokane agreed to a state compact, as all the other tribes here in Washington had done much earlier.

Spokane needed assistance because, as many will recall, they ran gaming without a compact for a number of years, so they were essentially going from being an IGRA-free zone to full compact compliance. I came in and assisted them for six months in getting into compliance with their internal controls or procedures, things of that nature. So, I've been involved in Washington gaming several different times.

Muckleshoot is the sixth tribe I've actually worked for, but as I said, I've also consulted with over 55 others. People often ask me if I've ever worked outside of Indian country. I say, no, I've always worked in Indian country. I've had opportunities to work in Vegas or different other jurisdictions, but either the opportunity wasn't correct or it just wasn't me.

People ask, "Well, what is it like?" I say, "Well, working for a tribe is like working for a family. It's just that the family is not just eight or ten members. It could be 4,000, could be 3,000, could be 800, or could be 15. I've worked for tribes or been affiliated in consulting roles with many different tribes, and they're always made up of those families.

But the biggest thing that I get from working in Indian country is that when you work for a public company, the gaming, the economic development, is going towards shareholders, or an individual owner.

Indian gaming, on the other hand – as I hope most people realize – is governed by the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, which was passed in 1988. The first paragraph of IGRA clearly states it is for the economic development and economic independence of tribes. That's why it was passed, for that specific purpose – to bring about the economic independence of Indian tribes.

Now, this tribe, Muckleshoot, as well as Coshatta and Isleta, are shining examples of the positive, of how Indian gaming creates that economic development and economic opportunity that enables tribes to make huge progress after years of economic difficulty.

When I went to Isleta, it was a relatively, I wouldn't say poor tribe, but they didn't have the economic development yet that gaming was to bring. It was basically a bingo hall, which had a limited economic impact on the community.

When we went to class three gaming, the revenues went from under $2 million to far north of $35 million. For that Pueblo and its 4,000 tribal members, it was huge. It was 1995. We had converted a bingo hall to a full-blown casino, keeping the bingo in the middle.

The Pueblo tribes there are very immersed in their culture. They use their language on a daily basis, and there are festivities during which some of the Pueblo casinos literally close down. So cultural sensitivity was always a consideration.

Dillon served his country as well. As a teenager, he joined the United States Naval Reserves just as World War II was coming to an end. The 17-year-old dropped out of Fife High School and spent four years in the reserves as a gunner and a radar worker. Just as he was leaving the reserves, Dillon was drafted into the Army in order to serve during the Korean Conflict. He spent two years, from 1952 to 1954, guarding the port and prisoner of war camps in Pusan. He earned his General Educational Development (GED) certificate when he was 50 years old.

Dillon was known for his commitment to helping youth, and took many children into his home as a foster parent. In recognition of his efforts to young people and involvement in the community, he was selected as a member of the Association of Washington Generals, a non-profit organization affiliated with the lieutenant governor's office.

Dillon is survived by his wife of 43 years Darlene Dillon; his younger sister Arlene Jackson; children Robert Dillon, Herman Dillon Jr., Steven Dillon Sr., Jenny Lee Roy, James Dillon, Diana Siddle, Michelle Dillon, Sheila Beckett, Julian Dillon, Justin Dillon, Alisha Beckett, and Stefanie Dillon; the many foster children he was father to; and numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren, nieces, nephews and cousins.

A public viewing was held on Saturday, May 31, followed by a memorial service on Sunday, June 1 at the Tacoma Dome that was attended by more than 1,000 people.

Heading Home

As my trip through life
Slowly began to fade
I took stock of my journey
And the part that I had played

With all the good times
Winning battles I fought
But when bad times prevailed
It was God whom I sought.

As the final hurdles began to appear
In my race with Father Time
I looked forward to God's Kingdom
With a vision of life so sublime.

The final chapter now came into view
With little time remaining to roam
I prayed for God to heed my call
As I began, "Heading Home".

Mrs. Z. Passes Peacefully, Leaves a Lasting Legacy

Ruth Ziolkowski, long-time inspirational leader of Crazy Horse Memorial, passed away peacefully on Wednesday, May 21, 2014 with members of her family at her side. She was well known and much beloved to numerous Muckleshoot Elders that she graciously hosted at Crazy Horse Memorial in South Dakota

Ruth Ross was born June 26, 1926, in Hartford, Connecticut. She first met Korczak Ziolkowski at age 13 when she and a girlfriend mustered the courage to call at the sculptor's home in West Hartford seeking the autograph of a well-known movie star who was visiting at the time. Two years later, Ruth met Korczak again when she was among a group of volunteers helping to raise money for the statue of Noah Webster which the sculptor was carving as a gift to West Hartford.

Korczak came to the Black Hills on May 3, 1947. Ruth followed a short time later, working as a volunteer to help create a memorial honoring the North American Indian. She helped Korczak prepare the logs for the log studio-home, as well as construct the 741-step wooden staircase to the top of the mountain.

Korczak and Ruth

Ruth and Korczak were married at Crazy Horse on Thanksgiving Day, 1950. Together, they shared the hard work and the joys of undertaking such a massive project. While Korczak worked on the mountain, Ruth managed the visitor complex. She also helped run the large dairy farm and lumber mill which was started to help sustain Crazy Horse through the difficult, early years.

"Life is a gift and I cherish each day with purpose and a thankful heart. The friends we make are one of life's true treasures and I am richly blessed beyond my greatest dream." ~ Mrs. Z.

Together Ruth and Korczak had 10 children, five boys and five girls, all of whom were born at home. Crazy Horse became very much a family project with John, Dawn, Adam, Jadwiga, Casimir, Anne, Mark, Joel, Monique and Marinka all growing up helping with what had become a family project. At the time of her passing, Ruth's family had grown to include 23 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Realizing that Ruth might one day inherit the responsibility of carrying on the Crazy Horse dream, Korczak prepared three books of comprehensive plans for the continuation of the mountain carving. That day arrived in 1982 when Korczak passed away at the age of 74. Ruth served as the Chief Executive Officer of the Crazy Horse Memorial Foundation ever since, staying actively involved right up until the day she died. Ruth was preceded in death by her husband, Korczak, and their daughter Anne.

Ruth was the inspirational leader of the Crazy Horse project and provided a steady guiding hand. Under her leadership, uninterrupted progress continued on the massive mountain sculpture, the Indian Museum of North America was expanded significantly, the Indian University of North America became reality, and the Foundation's Scholarship Program grew to exceed $2 million in cumulative financial assistance awarded to Native American students.

Affectionately known as "Mrs. Z.", Ruth loved her work. To her, it was simply a way of life and she lived each day with a sense of purpose and a strong spirit. Ruth possessed the inner strength and iron-will needed to persevere through difficult and challenging times and she faced adversity with courage and conviction. Ruth's legacy is one defined by faith and fortitude that anything is possible if you are willing to work hard enough and never give up.

A celebration of Ruth's life and legacy will be held at Crazy Horse Memorial at a date and time to be announced. A memorial fund has been established in Ruth's name to the Crazy Horse Memorial Foundation. <http://crazyhorsememorial.org/>

The Last Teachings of Chi'Ma'iingan

Adapted from an article by Michael Meuers published in Indian Country Today

Chi-ma'iingan – Larry Stillday, Sr. – a member of the Ojibwe Bear Clan, passed over on May 20th, 2014 at his home in Ponomah, the most traditional village on the remote Red Lake Reservation, far up in Minnesota's northwoods. Larry's Indian name means Big Wolf, and he was raised hearing the wisdom of the elders in his native tongue. As a young man, he served two tours in Viet Nam, and then lived the urban life.

In time, he found his passion, and worked to lead his people from the tangled web of addiction. He knew that all the keys were contained in the teachings he'd learned as a boy; thus, his life's work was to shape them into a set of tools that he could share with others – tools that would guide them on the good path of The Native Way.

After his return to the village of his youth in 1999, he devoted himself to helping people with the journey of their lives. He walked with many. In his final years, he shared his teachings openly with all races in the belief that the wisdom of the Old Ones might someday lift up not only his own people, but all peoples.

He often said of his teachings, "It's not about Indians, it's about people! The other colors will come to us and we must share – all the life forces must come into alignment! The prophecies tell us that we are now in the time of great healing, it says the four colors of the human family are once again given an opportunity to bring each color's gifts together and create a mighty nation."

Although it's not part of his own culture, he found the Medicine Wheel to be a useful instrument in his teachings. What follows are some excerpts from those teachings. With apologies, I note that it's something of a cut-and-paste job, tailored to fit the space available, but we hope that the message comes through...

"We use the Circle to explain life, and we use the ancient symbol of the Medicine Wheel to illustrate the Cycle of Life. Some think this is a religion, but it's a symbol, a teaching tool. Each direction on the wheel offers lessons and gifts that support the human developmental stages. The lesson is to remain balanced at the center of the wheel, while developing equally the spiritual, emotional, physical and mental aspects of one's being.

"To make circles you have to be in the center. We have to seek balance, wholeness and fulfillment. The four aspects of our being also have boundaries. Our (personal) boundaries protect us and give us a sense of who we are. They are not fixed. We change them with what we feel and who we are with. When our boundaries are intact, we know we have feelings, thoughts and realities that are separate from others! Our boundaries tell us where we end, and where the other person begins."

- Spiritual Boundaries: relate to our beliefs, experiences, and our relationship with our Creator.
- Emotional Boundaries: distinguishes our emotion and responsibilities in relation to others. It draws an imaginary line or a force field that separates us from others.
- Physical Boundaries: our physical space, and privacy.
- Mental Boundaries: applies to our values, opinions, attitudes, and thoughts.

"Healthy boundaries give us self-respect, self-esteem, self-image, and self-worth. This empowers us to make good choices and take responsibility for ourselves, always keeping the 'self' at the center of the wheel. We bring balance to our lives by honoring our spirit, heart, body and mind. We develop a solid self-concept." (By knowing ours – and respecting others' – boundaries)

The Spiritual Aspect. "This is our inner essence, the part of us that exists beyond time and space and connects us to the Universal Source and to the Oneness of Life. Developing our awareness of our spiritual level gives us the experience of a feeling of belonging in the universe and gives us a deeper meaning and purpose. Our spiritual aspect provides the foundation for the development of the other three aspects. It develops our relationship with our selves, with our creativity, our life purpose, and our relationship with our Creator."

The Emotional Aspect. "This gives us the ability to experience life on a deeper level. It gives us the ability to relate to one another – including the world – on a deeper level. It's the part of us that seeks meaningful connection and contact with others. Developing our emotional aspect (and knowing/applying its boundaries) allows us to feel a wide range of human experience with our five senses and find fulfillment in our relationships with ourselves and others. This aspect is about our feelings, our range of emotions; from fear to anger, love to happiness and joy. Emotional well-being is not the absence of emotions, but our ability to understand and value our emotions, and to use them to move us forward toward positive directions."

The Physical Aspect. "Our body is a vehicle we have been given so we can experience the world. It also includes our ability to survive and thrive in the material world. Developing our physical aspect involves learning to take care of our body and enjoying it. It also means developing skills to live comfortably and effectively in the material world."

The Mental Aspect. "This is our intellect, our ability to think and reason; it also consists of our thoughts, attitudes, beliefs and our values. It can be our greatest gift or sometimes our greatest curse. It can cause us to have terrible confusion or bring us profound understanding. Developing our mental aspect allows us to think clearly, to be open-minded and to gather knowledge and wisdom through our life experiences from the world around us."

All Four Aspects of our Being are Equally Important.

A Historic Season for the 2014 MTS Kings!

By Coach Jamie Sluys

The 2014 Kings baseball team had a season for the history books! Just take a look:

- The Kings posted a 14-4 record – the best in school history!
- Co-League champs – first time in history!
- 2nd place in BI-District in first appearance ever!
- 1st State appearance history of school baseball!

Coming off a season where the Kings were just 3-17 in 2013, turned it around to 14-4 record in 2014!

This past off-season the kids just came together. They really put the time and effort into becoming good teammates – something we stress every day in practice and in meetings!

Pitching and defense was the backbone of this year's club. Senior Josh Hamilton had an 8-1 record on the mound for the Kings, while backed by a defense was stellar all season! Infielders consisted of Warren Starr, 3rd base; JR Hamilton, shortstop; Aaron Arterberry, 2nd base; Harvey Starr, 1st base; Fide Ortiz, catcher.

The outfielders were Donovan Sather, Chuck Starr, Marlin Brown, Danny Ortiz and Eric Jametski.

All the boys had a significant role on the club. They took care of each other really well. They pulled for each other every day, all the way down to the last out! They never quit, And Most IMPORTANTLY they never quit on each other!

“We had some ups and downs like any group of young people, but in the end we all stood together in victory and defeat, and for that I couldn't be any prouder it was truly amazing to watch!

I really want to thank all my players and their families for letting me be a part of the growing process with them and their children. It's something I will always value and cherish! I'm truly appreciative for getting to share this wonderful opportunity with all of you! I also want to give special thanks to Coach Walden and Coach Hamilton for all their hard work and effort!

Look for the boys to return strong in 2015, with six players off the 2014 State Roster returning!! I can tell you this: Our boys are ALREADY HUNGRY FOR NEXT SEASON TO BEGIN!”

A NOTE FROM THE COACH ON THE EVE OF THE STATE TOURNAMENT...

Baseball Coach and MTS Athletic Director sent out this e-mail on the Friday before the boys took the field for their first-ever game at the State Championship Tournament level:

As we close this Friday I just would like to thank everyone for their support this week! I am extremely proud of the work this group of young men have put in! Win or lose this weekend this will be an experience they will cherish forever! Making the State tournament in NO easy achievement! This same “core” group of kids had a record of 3-17 last season! They took it amongst their self to get better in the off season! They made all the changes necessary to achieve this lofty goal they set for their self!

Your support of them on and off the field means everything to US!!

Senior Class Raises $2,346 in Relay for Life Event

The 2014 Senior class decided to complete a group community service project this year. The Senior class formed a Relay for Life Team – “Team Beast” and joined the Relay for Life Event at the University of Puget Sound.

At the event, the team camped out overnight and took turns walking around the track to raise money and awareness to help in the fight against cancer. Almost all of these students have been touched by cancer in some way, so they decided to make a difference by walking and raising money for the American Cancer Society.

Team Beast raised $2,346 and was recognized at the event as the “Rising Star Team”. The Team would like to thank the Muckleshoot Tribal School, the Muckleshoot community and the Muckleshoot tribal council for their contributions to our fundraiser.

We appreciated ALL the support! Thank You,

After School Reading Program Students Recognized

The Muckleshoot Indian Tribal School would like to take this time to recognize the following students and families for their dedication to the After School Reading Program.

MTS implemented an after school reading program this spring. The goal and focus of the program was geared at improving K-5 reading and comprehension skills. The students have been working diligently to improve their reading and comprehension skills through a rigorous academic reading program. Because of their dedication and attendance in the program they will see growth in their abilities and become successful and confident readers.

We greatly appreciate both the students and parents, for ensuring their child's attendance in the program. The students spend three (3) hours a week, after school, working in structured reading groups. These kids have shown a true drive and dedication to the program through their commitment in attending each session.

This program has been a huge success due to the unwavering support of our Superintendent Michael Aaron, and our Vice Principle Sean Schoenfeldt. Because of their dedication and commitment to ensuring every child reaches their fullest potential, this program was available to our students.

Once again, thank you to the following students and all their families who have been actively involved in the Spring 2014 After School Reading Program. We look forward to serving more students in the 2014-15 school year.

Thank You,

FACTS ABOUT METHAMPHETAMINE

What does meth look like? Meth is often in the form of an odorless, bitter-tasting, crystalline powder. It can be white, yellow, or brown in color.

WHAT IS METHAMPHETAMINE?

Methamphetamine is a highly addictive stimulant. The potential for addiction is higher as compared to other drugs of abuse. Street names include meth, crystal meth, speed, crank, ice, glass, and Tina. Meth can be snorted, smoked, injected or swallowed. Methamphetamine dramatically affects the central nervous system, altering the brain almost immediately. Meth produces euphoric effects in the brain by increasing the brain's dopamine levels. The increase is not only more dramatic but also results in brain damage not seen in other drugs of abuse.

THE HEALTH AND WELLNESS HAS A NEW FORM OF BIRTH CONTROL: IMPLANON

What is IMPLANON?

IMPLANON is a hormone-releasing birth control implant for use by women to prevent pregnancy for up to 3 years. The implant is a flexible plastic rod about the size of a matchstick that contains a progestin hormone called etonogestrel. Your Provider will insert the implant just under the skin of the inner side of your upper arm. You can use a single IMPLANON implant for up to 3 years. IMPLANON does not contain estrogen

Not an actual implant

Not actual size of implant

The IMPLANON implant must be removed after 3 years. Your health care provider can insert a new implant under your skin after taking out the old one if you choose to continue using IMPLANON for birth control.

How Does IMPLANON work?

IMPLANON prevents pregnancy in several ways. The most important way is by stopping the release of an egg from your ovary. IMPLANON also changes the mucus in your cervix and this change may keep sperm from reaching the egg. IMPLANON also changes the lining of your uterus. When the IMPLANON implant is placed correctly, your chance of getting pregnant is very low (less than one pregnancy per 100 women who use IMPLANON for one year). It is not known if IMPLANON is as effective in very overweight women because clinical studies did not include many overweight women.

How Can I Get IMPLANON?

If you are sexually active and do not want to get pregnant and interested in talking to your doctor about whether IMPLANON is the right form of birth control for you, please call the Medical Clinic at 253-939-6648 and make an appointment for an IMPLANON consult.

NO MORE CAVITIES

Tanya Clarke, RDH, Dr. Robert Osborne, Dr. Craig Brandon, Dr. Ann Mayeda

Wouldn't it be great if children no longer had to worry about getting cavities and had beautiful teeth? Wouldn't it be wonderful if adults could quit worrying about gum disease and having teeth pulled? Welcome to the new dental age of preventive dentistry.

- Cavities are caused by an acid attack on the teeth each time that you eat or drink.
- The body removes the food and acid away by rinsing these acids with saliva.
- Saliva contains minerals capable of rebuilding enamel (the hard outer wall of tooth layer).
- The acid attack can be neutralized unless a large amount of dental plaque is left on the tooth.
- A diet high in certain sugars causes acid attacks too.
- Then tooth decay occurs.

We can best help ourselves by preventing cavities with good home care (flossing and brushing).

Routine professional dental care is very important too.

We at the Muckleshoot Health and Wellness Dental Clinic would like to help you prevent cavities.

Please come and visit us soon.

"Your Suggestions Count"

The Muckleshoot Health & Wellness Center offers "suggestion boxes" where guests can fill out forms to share thoughts, comments or suggestions. The purpose of these forms is to help us improve the quality of services offered to the community. These forms are not "incident reports", but rather confidential and private opportunities to share your thoughts on what we are doing well or on ways we might improve.

The suggestion boxes are located in each reception area and the main lobby of the building. The feedback forms are located next to the boxes. The boxes are checked at least twice a month by the Facilities Secretary and then delivered directly and confidentially to the appropriate department manager. Suggestions are then discussed privately at Quality Improvement committee meetings.

If possible, please provide contact information on the suggestion form so the appropriate manager can contact you to address your particular suggestion or area of concern. Again, this would be a confidential and private conversation.

We want to hear from you. Please take a moment to stop by the Health & Wellness Center and fill out a suggestion form today. Your thoughts matter!

Thank you

"In order to feel whole and lead a satisfying life, we need to spend time and attention on understanding, developing and integrating each aspect. All must work together to make us a whole person. What happens to one aspect affects all the other aspects. Since all four must work in harmony to achieve wellness, each aspect needs our attention and care to perform at its best.

The Spiritual You: requires inner calmness, openness to creativity and trust with your inner knowing."

The Emotional You: needs to give and receive forgiveness, love and compassion, needs to laugh and experience happiness."

The Physical You: requires good nutrients, exercise and adequate rest."

The Mental You: needs self-supportive attitudes, positive thoughts and viewpoints, and a positive self-image."

Health is defined as a Balance Among the Four Aspects of Being. Reaching a Balance in Life is an Ongoing Process.

Free Estate Planning and Will Drafting Service for Muckleshoot Tribal Members

The Institute for Indian Estate Planning and Probate at Seattle University School of Law, will be assisting the Muckleshoot Indian Tribe starting June 2, 2014 to draft a new will OR change an existing will that will comply with Tribal, State, and Federal law. Holly Sprague, an intern with the Institute working under the direction of Attorney Guadalupe Ceballos, will be able to meet with Muckleshoot tribal members up until August 1, 2014.

You need a will if:

- You are over 18
- You have, or may acquire, trust land, non-trust land, or personal property
- You have children or step-children under 18
- You want to leave property to someone who is not in your immediate, blood family
- You want to leave income from an interest to a non-Indian spouse.
- You want to stop further fractionation of your land

If you die without a will, the American Indian Probate Reform Act (AIPRA) will determine who will receive your trust land, but with a will you have many more options! If you are interested in learning more or having your will written, please contact Holly Sprague.

All services are free to Muckleshoot Tribal members and Muckleshoot Community members, regardless of tribal enrollment or ownership of trust land.

CONTRACT HEALTH SERVICE (CHS) NOTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS

CHS OFFICE (253) 939-6648

1. Notify CHS office before any non-emergent services are rendered to determine patient eligibility, medical priority and to set aside funds for payment. Pre-authorization is mandatory and failure to comply is reason for denial of payment for claim(s).
2. In true medical emergencies, notify the CHS office within seventy two (72) hours of start of services. Failure to comply is reason for denial of payment of claim(s).
3. Prior notification does not guarantee CHS pay for services, unless all other CHS requirements are met. There are some services CHS can not cover.

ALTERNATE RESOURCE REQUIREMENTS:

Muckleshoot CHS is a residual resource and not an entitlement program. In addition to CHS, other resources for health care are available from various state, and federal programs, as well as individual and group health insurance policies. By federal law, CHS must ensure that all resources, where and when applicable, are utilized before CHS can assume financial responsibility for your care.

This means that CHS will not be authorized if you are eligible or would be eligible upon making an application for an alternate resource such as: Medicare (over age 65 or disabled at any age), Medicaid (medical coupons), crippled children or have private insurance etc. Failure to comply with a CHS office referral to an alternate resource will terminate your CHS coverage. You are required to use these benefits as your first source of payment of your medical-related costs.

The CHS office is required, as per IHS Federal Rules and Regulations, which requires all CHS denials to patients be sent by certified mail to the address on file.

I knew we were going in the right direction when I saw a well-respected elder in the bingo hall section of the casino one evening. She kind of flagged me down, and I remembered seeing her at a feast. She was a Lucero. So I said, "Hello Mrs. Lucero, how are you doing?" And she replies, "Fine," and then she taps me on the arm and says "I just want to thank you." I said, "Thank me, what for?" And she went on to say, "With all the things that you've done at the casino, you make us proud of who we are again."

That was in 1995. We're in 2014. I still remember that. That's why I do what I do. It has challenges. It has the concerns about all the things that happen in the course of Indian Country. I've had that discussion with the Council, and they live it. They have my utmost respect, because what they do – literally every decision they make, or a tribal judge, or tribal police – is always the wrong one to some family, and half the time, you're related to them.

I don't have that, but I still understand the culture I'm in. And to that end, with all the tribes I've worked with, I've built up a pretty extensive gaming library, but I also have a library of Native American tribes in this country that I've worked with, because I try to find three things about them: their history, what's their governmental structure and how do they operate, but even more important are the things about their culture and their myths and legends, because that has a driving force in many Native American cultures – more than people realize. It affects some more than others. Coshatta didn't have as much of that, but the Pueblos are very much into symbolism, things that we might use, such as certain hieroglyphic type of things, and other images you cannot use for specific reasons because of their content.

So, it's important to understand those things, and what I tell people, particularly those in the gaming industry who have never worked in Indian country, when they call me up and say, "What's it like?" – I say, "Well it's no different than a board of directors. You still have a board of directors. There's a Tribal Council. Yeah, there's interpersonal relationships. But, at the end of the day, they're human beings. They will make mistakes, but there will be many positives as well. You're there to run the business. Stay out of the tribal politics, stay out of the issues."

I'm not here to do that, and that's perfectly okay with Council – fully understood at both ends. I'm here to run the business. Now, you still have those challenges that come on a daily basis. But, at the end of the day, it's being open – understanding what the role is and communicating, – more than anything else. Whether it be tribal member or non-tribal member, we are here for the success of this operation, which then in turn, is the success of the tribe. That's it. Beyond that, let's have fun and let's make it happen.

Advance Directives

From the desk of Ronette Bailey
Medical Social Worker

What is an Advance Directive?

This is a way for You to tell your family, friends, and Health Care Providers what kind of medical treatments you DO or DO NOT want if you become unable to speak for yourself in the event of a medical emergency. The Advance Directives generally include the following:

A Living Will (aka: Health Care Directive):

This is a written or printed document that clarifies whether you wish to withhold or withdraw "life sustaining procedures" if you are in a terminal or permanently unconscious medical state.

A Durable Power of Attorney:

This documentation allows you to choose someone to make medical decisions for you if you are not able to do so for yourself. It also allows you to specify what types of decisions your designated contact can make for you.

This type of advanced decision making and documentation can be an important resource in the event of a medical emergency and it can reduce the stress that is often felt by friends and family members at these critical times.

BUY NATIVE BY NATIVE

Tribal entrepreneur sets out to start a grassroots movement for Native-owned businesses

By Matt Nagle

It's no secret that there are numerous Native American-owned businesses in the South Sound, but exactly what these businesses do and how to find them is a secret of sorts in that there is no one place to find out about them. For those who wish to shop at and do business with Native-owned companies, where do customers go to find them?

Local entrepreneur and Puyallup tribal member William Manzanares is out to solve this dilemma. Himself a successful small business owner with much experience in start-ups on the reservation, he became perplexed recently when attempting, in vain, to find listings of local Native businesses.

"One day I went to make a purchase then realized that I don't know how to buy Native products. I Googled it and didn't find anything," he said, noting that there is no "Angie's List" for businesses owned by tribal members. "There are chambers of commerce for different cities, but there's no local Native chamber of commerce for all Native businesses. We should keep our money in our own community."

To do something about it, William Manzanares is launching a grassroots movement that he's hoping will take hold among area Native entrepreneurs and help build a stronger business presence on the Puyallup reservation and beyond, encompassing for-profits and non-profits alike.

"I like to promote entrepreneurship and business ownership in our Tribe and I think this is the best way to show everyone that there are Native owned businesses and not just smoke shops and gambling establishments. I want to get people to participate in this. We can wait for someone else to do it or we can just do it ourselves.

"It should be one quick Google search so that you could find out in a minute which businesses are Native owned," William Manzanares said.

Given that this type of grassroots movement is unprecedented in the South Sound, it will require the involvement of business-owning tribal members to make it work. Thus, the first task at hand is to get a handle on just how many Native-owned businesses there are locally and what each business does.

"I need to know how many entrepreneurs there are in our Tribe who own their own business or non-profit who'd be willing to participate," William Manzanares said.

Building a website for a Native business network that the public can access is in the plans, as is creating a regular business page in the Puyallup Tribal News that will feature business listings, interviews with business owners, business profiles and advice on how tribal members can launch and run their own business. William Manzanares has lined up a few volunteers to help him with this project, which includes involving Chief Leschi Schools in order to show the youth that they too can open their own business one day if they so choose.

"I don't know how far this can go, but the sky's the limit in my mind."

Anyone who wants to get in on the ground floor of this exciting project is encouraged to contact William Manzanares at (253) 405-5625 or e-mail William@smokinwillys.com
